The game has been designed by James D. Perry from postcards, letters, telephone bills and rusty parts that he collected from the attic and the cellar of his house. When he retired he finally stopped counting the hours spent playing tanks, and so WWII Online was born! Just for fun, of course. The game is in constant development to be the best tank battler of its kind. WWII Online uses the Gaijin Entertainment's proprietary "open world" system that allows the immersion into a sandbox experience, while still retaining the role of a battle simulator. Furthermore, the game was designed from the ground up to be the ultimate multiplayer experience, allowing two people to simultaneously take control of their tank. WWII Online is being developed with the "back in the day" approach in mind, to provide a war game experience comparable to the old World War II campaign games. No compromises have been made to make the game easier to play. On the contrary, such a hardcore approach to WWII simulator makes the game more realistic. The game is being developed by a small team of 3 people, and that's it! Please, don't send us mail (mail-bomb) if you are not subscribed to an service. What's new:

Contributed by Tommy X-D5, WatchMojo Staff Writer My mom once told me, "You know how life is like a box of chocolates. You never know what you're going to get?" She was speaking from experience, since having her and my dad divorced was a box of chocolates for me. On our wedding day, it was a box of donuts. They're much better by the way. I've come to realize that "life" on One Tree Hill is like a daily box of chocolates and donuts. Yes, I'm from New England - my hometown, TV show, and an episode of the show are all named after the city of Boston, but it's not always wall-to-wall chocolate and cinnamon buns. The box of chocolates has the same list of categories that there are of never-ending episodes, so we'll just briefly recap today's episode about Abduction. She thinks you're a bad boy... Ellie's. She's has a feeling that you're a bad boy since you two had the beautiful, intimate night you saw in the first three minutes, so I'm already rooting for ya, Chase! She thinks that you're going to cheat on her with Charlotte when she's not looking, or at least not online. Her reasoning: 1) Chase isn't a nice guy, so you'll cheat; 2) You're a player, so you'll cheat; 3) Ellie has a dirty mind with imaginations; 4) You want to go out and have fun with Charlotte, but you're going to do it without Ellie and leave her upset; 5) Ellie's a jealous, horrible person with a stick up her ass who deserves to be abandoned. Nooooooo - she despises you because you had a hot night with Charlotte and didn't call her, a good-looking dater. It's so crazy because first of all, you two dated briefly in season 1 and can't stand each other, she thinks you like to cheat, you're a player, she's bad-ass, and you want to run for the hills with Charlotte. The second thing, is that Charlotte hurt Ellie - as a person, something she truly believes to be the opposite. If I'm as much of a cheater as you, Ellie, I'd run away with someone, especially someone like Charlotte, since both of them are "fair game" just like each other. Which girl did you
