

Comments En la página aparece "No data available" de Apple® en el iOS® . Ive tried to delete the data from safari settings and i can delete it but then it appears again, what's wrong? . I also tried to reset my Mac and checked my etc/hosts file and tried removing it just to check if some old vbs scripts that were connecting to the site were causing the problem but no luck. . . I have the most recent version of my safari (Version: 1.2.06 OS X.s12.4.5 (16G46B4-79)) . I know that the a.s.p. How to I remove that text from the web page you referenced? .

I've tried removing my browser cache and restarting my browser but it is still showing, any idea? . wallyrobert same problem with both safari and chrome if someone knows how to solve it that would be nice, i don't have the right to ask for anything but help is good too. . I've recently changed my google account password and i'm not sure if this is the reason why the problem only appears on the site you mentioned, the site works fine on any other website but that one. . I've also recently updated my mac to Catalina, i don't know if that makes any difference because i still get the error but it is annoying me though. . Thank you! . The cache in Safari is located in your Library. .

You can remove it from there but if you want it to NOT show up again you can delete it from the folder list. . . . Deleting it from the Finder is the best option. I've finally tried something, I deleted the cache from the Library and from the Safari preferences but I still see the message every time I login to the site, i've also tried deleting the folder from my Mac that contains the messages but that didn't work, there must be some settings somewhere but i can't find it. .
