Adobe has simplified its licensing into an all-in-one solution, known as the Adobe Creative Suite, which contains the five aforementioned applications and digital tools, enabling full professional-level production of any type of graphic you can imagine. When using the Creative Suite, many people enjoy the ease of having one product that does everything. However, some functions are available in the standalone versions of the products.

Q: Amazon MWS API to get EC2 cost I am working on a EC2 instance that is cost intensive. My team needs to know what my instance cost is. We have a third party company that is abstracting EC2 data to our team. We are trying to use the Amazon MWS API and the Data From Amazon to help us get this information. We have currently been working with PointProductCode, the temporary codes that Amazon sends when you request a price for an EC2 instance. I have included the EC2 example code below. It does not seem to give the total cost of the EC2. I have been working with it for the past few days and it does not work. Here is my code: /* Utility class. * * Class provides methods to create dynamic productid, price, and offerid * MWS offers. * / public class AmazonMwsUtility { // create your access key and secret key; AWSStaticCredentialsProvider credentials = new AWSStaticCredentialsProvider(credentialsFile, new ProfileCredentialsProvider(), RegionEndpoint.EU_WEST_1); AWSCredentials credentials = credentials.getCredentials(); AmazonWebServiceClient client = new AmazonWebServiceClient(credentials); // initialize the offer request with the credentials provided in createOffer and service endpoint. CreateOfferRequest request = new CreateOfferRequest(); request.setClientRequestToken(credentials.getAWSSecretKey()); request.setServiceEndpoint(endpoint); request.setProductCode(""); request.setOfferClassification(""); request.setQuantity(quantity); request.setPrice(price); // create the response wrapper that will be returned from the MWS service. CreateOfferResponse response = client.createOffer(request); System.out.println("====="); System.out.println(response); System.out.println("====="); } / * Utility class to create a product code and temporary price. * * Class creates a product code and

Q: How to get the absolute path of a File when the File's name contains spaces I'm getting the File object from a button event. In the button's click event I'm trying to save the File with a saveAs() function. The saveAs function expects a File name, and it doesn't seem to be the case of mine. How can I retrieve the full path and save the File under its name? Here is what I have for now: private void button1_Click(object sender, EventArgs e) { textBox1.Text = Server.MapPath("~/App_Data/Test.xlsx"); File.WriteAllText(textBox1.Text, "test"); } A: You need to use Path.Combine() or Path.Combine().PathSeparator, so that you have your file name in the path, like: string temp = Server.MapPath("~/App_Data/Test.xlsx"); textBox1.Text = Path.Combine(temp, "Test.xlsx"); to get C:\Users\user\AppData\Local\Temp\Test.xlsx (width) && !isScrolling { x += Math.abs(downx); } if (!isScrolling && x + (width - Math.abs(downx)) >= width) { // You should not be getting here, it's either a scrolling scenario, or a click. // Maybe you want to cancel a click, or report a click.
