The goal of the build is to make the sport feel more real by creating a level of responsiveness and control that is unprecedented for a video game. You'll notice that the size, weight and size of both players and ball become more realistically proportionate to the athlete's physical characteristics. Interactive changes are fully powered on-the-fly as you run the ball, make passes, juke and slide defenders and create space with dribbling, feints, crosses and shots. Deep customization in terms of skill sets, styles and tactic variations is present in-game. Professional modes continue to be a focus for FIFA. It includes the return of the Pro Clubs mode, which puts you in charge of a team in the World League or in the UEFA Champions League. The FIFA Ultimate Team Championship and multiple other online tournaments are also included. The FIFA series has seen massive improvements in the four-year history of the Ultimate Team mode. The latest entry, FIFA 22, continues the established philosophy of bringing the World Cup/League gameplay to players by building an online universe with multiple modes and the ability to create your own user base, on-the-fly, that can be accessed by other players. The game will feature a new iteration of the popular Ultimate Team mode, as well as Ultimate Team Champions and The Journey. Additionally, there will be a new Online Tournament system, various new Premium Packs, new user-created content, and support for cross-platform multiplayer via the new Spectator feature. The full list of features can be found here. The game will be released on August 27, 2019. In FIFA Ultimate Team you play as a football manager who has the chance to build and manage his very own football club. It's your opportunity to take part in some of the most authentic football gaming ever - you'll face off against real players, you'll see the drama unfold in the stadiums you support, you'll make thousands of decisions as you attempt to bring your team to glory! My Player - At My Player, you are a football club owner and manager, and FIFA begins where you live it: the stadium, the training ground, and the pitches. It's your chance to experience the thrill of what it feels like to be a sports fan in your very own stadium. You'll connect with your fans, renew your contracts, develop your players, and build a dream team. Rivalry Mode - Create the ultimate opposition for your very own club by becoming a rival manager. FIFA's new Rivalry Mode lets you build a club in your very own city or stadium and pit them up against your club in an intense, head-to-head game. Play against your friends or anyone with a copy of FIFA 21 to face off in this multiplayer challenge. Marketers must be corporate team members if they want to pitch FUT to clients this year. It has just been reported by ESPN that marketers will need to be part of FUT to demonstrate to clients the compelling new features and content they can access with the game. The news first came to light this week by Consumer Edge (CE), the media and entertainment business within The Nielsen Company. The CE blog has just released a list of its top FUT features and content to demonstrate to clients: Game Modes: There are three game modes for players to enjoy, including Career, Club and Tournament. Career is a massive overhaul of the FIFA gameplay engine with enhanced Player Mode, new Teams and Clubs, realistic transfers, more interactive crowd-chants and new Game Moments. Club allows you to manage your own real-world football club in addition to the Squad in Career Mode, while Tournament is a new Live Event Mode that allows you to compete with friends in quick-fire series across all three modes, or compete in Live FIFA Leagues. The CE blog also went on to discuss it a bit more: Research shows that more and more consumers are working from their home, so CE is closely examining which platforms will drive awareness of these
